20-30 Jerry's rolls. They work really well without the index finger. Look at the right hand fingering notes as the pattern is quite easy:

- first four notes (last note of measure 19 + 3 of measure 20) are played with just thumb and middle finger. The latter plucks string 2 twice, the former follows by alternating strings 4, then 3. Very simple
- next you do an arpeggio on strings 1, 2 and 3, starting with the ring finger, and middle and thumb who already are comfortable on strings 2 and 3.
- the last note is played with the ring finger, its purpose is to bridge you to the next roll. Also very easy.

A little at loss with the last chord.

28-29 - Sometimes I cannot hear Chet's part, so please forgive me

33-34 - I still have no clue how to make MuseScore work a Bigsby

41 - This is jazz, right?

46 - Jerry does not do the whole diminished form, he uses some pro trick!

56-69 - Jerry's solo mixes up major and minor scales together. Now, I know nothing about ad lib playing, but I cannot imagine ever being able to do that without laying it on paper first! Maybe that's how they got to sound better than anyone else!

63 - Take care here, I am not sure I got it right. In fact, be careful with any tab that comes from me!

69-70 - People left comments like "look, Chet picked up right where Jerry left it!" And I also thought, yea, sounds correct. And what do you know, it is exactly like that plus the thirds, and it is again the 7th note on the first beat!

94 - You have to figure out the ending!

I first learned this tune from a tab by Bruce Mock, and I may have got it from Jack Baker's frettedinstrumentsnyc.com.

Then I forgot how to play it, discovered this amazing video and had to imitate the masters one more time!
